

A close-up portrait of a woman's face, focusing on her eyes and a mole on her forehead. She has light blue eyes and is looking directly at the camera with a slight smile. A white sticker with a red border is placed on her forehead, containing the text "I'M NO MIRACLE".

I'M NO MIRACLE

Cancer doesn't magically disappear. Like Taylor's stage I cancer, it must be caught early and treated effectively. She is one of 15.5 million Americans who are living beyond cancer thanks to recent federally funded research breakthroughs. One Voice Against Cancer represents more than 50 organizations striving to protect funding for those breakthroughs. Together we are telling Congress: Increase NIH and NCI funding.
